ISO 27001 Certified - OOCL Data Centers

The purpose of implementing information security is to ensure the availability of timely, accurate information when delivering products and services, and at the same time prevent and minimize security incidents.

Information is now globally accepted as being a vital asset for most organizations and businesses. As such, the Confidentiality, Integrity, and Availability of vital corporate and customer information are essential to maintain a competitive edge, cash-flow, profitability, legal compliance and a positive commercial image.

ISO 27001 is intended to assist with this task. It is easy to imagine the consequences for an organization if its information was lost, compromised or misused. In many cases it can (and has) led to the collapse of companies.

OOCL management realizes the importance and value of its information systems and its processing resources. For this reason we have adhered to stringent market standards in order to obtain the ISO27001 and have maintained this certification since 2005; and we have just received the renewed certification until 2017. Through this certification our customers can be confident that our operations are secure and their data is always securely handled in transactions.

If you have any concern over our IT services, please contact us to find out more.
